Background and experience

John heads the Property Law team in Ireland and is also the Practice partner of Ogier's Ireland office.

John acts for some of the largest domestic and international property companies in Ireland, advising on all aspects of commercial property, including sales, leases, financing, acquisition and tax based restructuring. He regularly works on development financing and construction projects, including all aspects of development structuring.

A property market expert, John has a penchant for deal-making and finding solutions for clients that they didn't know were possible. Recently, John has advised a number of joint venture partners on the acquisition, development and structuring of high profile and complex property investments.

A graduate of University College Dublin, John spent two years working as a commercial lender in Corporate and Commercial Banking before training, qualifying and practising with one of Ireland's largest commercial law firms.

Recent work

- Advice on development, financing and forward commitment sale of a €140 million PRS Scheme to International Pension Fund (Dublin)
- Advice on purchase, financing, development and sale of a multi family residential investment project to two international investment funds (GDV €160 million) (Dublin)
- Advice on acquisition, development and financing of a €200 million hotel portfolio with international lenders (Dublin)
