Background and experience

Before joining Ogier Leman, Caroline worked in-house for a commercial property developer. She advised on acquisitions and disposals, planning law and zoning, risk management and strategic future development of assets.

Caroline trained in a regional firm with a boutique commercial offering in developing greenfield sites, shopping centres and pension funds.

A graduate of the University of Galway, she has a master's degree in Strategy, Innovation and People Management, a Bachelor of Laws and a Bachelor of Arts in legal science, sociological and political studies. Caroline also studied at Ireland's oldest law school, the King's Inn, completing her Advanced Diploma in Planning and Environmental Law.
