Background and experience

Katy was called to the English Bar in 2005 where she practised for many years before returning to Guernsey, her childhood home. Katy is a consummate trial lawyer and has a wealth of advocacy experience spanning nearly two decades, including in the Court of Appeal. Katy brings this tactical knowledge and forensic attention to detail to all matters on which she is instructed.

Admitted in:

2005 - England and Wales

| Recognition

"She makes it her business not just to understand the dispute in question but also its wider context. She goes the extra mile."

Client feedback

"Katy not only works all hours but uses her wider experience and skills to position the case in the best possible way with the court and even the opposition."
