

Ogier partner to give offshore perspective on blockchain technology's impact on the entertainment in

News - 09/11/2018

Ogier partner Bradley Kruger will join a panel to discuss the impact of blockchain technology on the entertainment industry at the North American Law Summit, of which Ogier is a sponsor.

Bradley will join a panel alongside Michael D. Hobbs, Jr of Troutman Sanders, Alan K. Fertel of Weiss Serota Helfman Pastoriza Cole & Bisinske and Stephen M. Gaffigan in a session titled "The Summit Newsroom: Entertainment, Sports & IP News".

The North American Law Summit is a four-day legal education conference, focused on topics relating to entertainment, sports and IP.

The Summit brings together legal professionals, business executives, and law students for four days of in-depth learning.

Bradley said: "I am looking forward to speaking at the North American Law Summit which brings together attorneys and business executives to discuss entertainment, sports and IP issues especially at a time when so much is changing in these industries."

Bradley advises technology companies, ICO issuers and cryptocurrency fund managers and is a member of the firm's Digital, Blockchain and Fintech group.

He also advises on corporate and commercial transactions in the areas of corporate finance, mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures and redomiciliations, as well as regulatory matters. He is praised by directories for his "responsiveness and client-orientated service" and his "real offshore expertise".

The summit will take place on 7-11 November at the Westin Hotel in Grand Cayman.
