News - 15/09/2020

Three of Ogier's rising stars are finalists in Citywealth's Future Leaders Awards – recognising Josephine Howe, Oliver Richardson and Matthew Davies as future leaders in the private wealth industry.

The four Ogier finalists illustrate the cross-disciplinary expertise of Ogier's Trusts Advisory Group, a team specialising in private wealth, dispute resolution and corporate law, drawing together specialists with substantial experience across multiple jurisdictions.

Oliver Richardson – finalist in the Lawyer of the Year – Senior/Managing Associate category (and the only offshore lawyer in that category) – is a corporate lawyer with a reputation for managing high value, complex transactions. One client said: "Oliver is highly skilled beyond his years and often thinks outside the box to assist his clients with a high degree of care, commitment and proficiency."

Matthew Davies – finalist in the IFC Lawyer of the Year – Associate category – is an associate in Ogier's Dispute Resolution team. Matthew works on significant and complex pieces of litigation. With a combination of technical excellence and committed to the development of others, Matthew is also a passionate advocate for diversity and inclusion.

Josephine Howe – finalist in the IFC Lawyer of the Year – Partner category – is a Private Wealth partner who acts for a wide range of professional trustees, settlors and beneficiaries, including leading trust companies, private banks and family offices on all issues concerning trusts and foundations as well as private wealth, probate and regulatory matters. One client says: "She is pragmatic and cuts to the chase."

Global head of Private Wealth at Ogier, James Campbell, said: "Between them Oliver, Wisdom, Matthew and Josephine provide exceptional client service, technical expertise and a highly commercial approach. We are extremely proud that they are each finalists in the Citywealth Future Leaders Awards."
