

Sustainable Investing and Impact Funds specialist at Ogier, partner Kate Hodson will discuss how the boardroom and investors can lead the way in a low carbon recovery at the Business Environment Council's EnviroSeries Conference 'Business sustainability in the midst of disruption, turbulence and recovery' on 8 July.

Reflecting on the unprecedented disruption the world is facing in recent months, the main objective of this conference is to challenge our conventional wisdom and find an innovative, low carbon approach to recover from the lows of the COVID-19 outbreak.

The conference will highlight the tough challenges, extended risks as well as new-found opportunities faced by businesses in such difficult time, and to showcase how corporate leaders are building resilience and adaptability into their business planning and operations for long-term sustainability.