

Ogier and TMF Group are excited to kick-off their collaborative ESG Masterclass Series. The first co-hosted event will take place online on 11 December 2020, 5pm – 6:30 pm Hong Kong time.

This masterclass will be delivered by Leonie Kelly (Director, Head of ESG & Impact Advisory, Ogier) and Seamus Fox (Commercial Director, TMF) and is intended to provide an introduction to environmental, social and governance ("ESG") across asset class. We will examine how global environmental and social challenges, regulatory and reputational risks, and new market opportunities have made ESG factors a source of fundamental importance when it comes to making and analysing investments.

Engaging our clients in this conversation today is an important step that will inform not only how we do business now, but how we chart the future of business. Our first masterclass will unwrap ESG insights for investors and asset managers by tackling the core fundamentals and address questions such as:

What is ESG? What is the sustainable finance spectrum? What are the market trends? What are the various forms of sustainable investing strategies? What does sustainable investing look like across asset class? And more.
