

Guernsey: A jurisdiction of substance

Economic substance regulations are being introduced across the globe and this means that clients are now required to critically evaluate their economic substance in their jurisdiction of tax residency.

For some businesses, it will prove a challenge to meet the applicable economic substance regulations without making any changes to their day-to-day operations and in some cases it may be necessary to consider relocation to a jurisdiction where the core income generating activities of the business can be carried out within that jurisdiction by a suitably sized and skilled workforce.

Enter Guernsey - a destination of choice for businesses seeking to achieve economic substance.
