Ogier Regulatory Consulting

We are adaptive in our thinking and approach, responding to each client's individual needs and situation

With our international team of regulatory lawyers advising on which and how laws must be complied with, our compliance consultants advise on the operational implementation of programmes to meet those legal requirements. For example, regulatory lawyers might advise a regulated client that they need a cybersecurity policy and what this should cover; our compliance consultants will work with the client to develop and implement a policy that is tailored to the client's specific infrastructure.

For many financial services clients our advice begins with a needs assessment and review of the client's latest risk assessments. In conjunction with Ogier's regulatory legal team we can identify applicable regulatory requirements and the appropriate course of action. We then facilitate the approval of the work required by those responsible for governance.

We can be engaged in the discharge of those action points or return at a future time to review the completion, reporting any further recommendations.

Services include:

- Advisory
- AML Officer services
- Audit (AML, Compliance)
- Training
- Remediation and monitoring
