Ogier has advised on the £820m (US$1.1bn) acquisition of Alexander Mann Solutions, one of the world's leading providers of talent acquisition and management services.

A Jersey team led by partner Richard Daggett advised OMERS Private Equity, the private equity arm of OMERS, the defined benefit pension plan for municipal employees in the Province of Ontario, on the acquisition from New Mountain Capital.

Alexander Mann Solutions' 4,000 talent acquisition and management experts deliver solutions in partnership with over 100 clients across 85 countries, helping clients, typically large international businesses, to recruit and retain talent through multi-year contracts.

The Ogier legal team included senior associates Alan Stirling and Rani Khiani, working alongside Weil, Gotshal & Manges on the deal.

Richard said: "It is great to be working with OMERS again on another fantastic transaction, supporting our client across multiple service lines.

"Having advised on numerous OMERS acquisitions since 2010, we look forward to continuing the relationship as Alexander Mann Solutions joins the OMERS stable of exceptional portfolio companies."
